The pieced together letter is as follows: "At Home, March 19, 1907. "I am ready for the mission early to-night, and think that I should write you this letter. * * * Of course, I am going to scold you, for your ugly ways have pulled at my heart strings. I am sorry, any dear little girl, you have become tired serving a kind and loving Savior and are now serving his eneraies. I am hoping you will change your mind about going to the dence.

" "I will not ask to go down Virginia avenue on the one condition that you go straight home after leaving me.

" " I am also sorry that you and Ada are not on the best of terms, but I am not surprised as you two have been too thick. You know what I mean " " " No, I do not think under the circumstances I omet to kiss. I am hoping you will change circumstances I ought to kiss, but I know how hard it is to keep m doing so. * * * I have given my from doing so, * * * I have given my best efforts to help you to be a girl pleasing in God's sight. Won't you come back? I say come back, because you know that you have been wandering away. Hoping to see my little girl a bright and happy Christian, I remain, with lots of love and kisses, "Your Aunt Net."
